CREATED TO GROW

2022 Community Report

STRONGER ARTS FOR A STRONGER REGION
In 2022, Cincinnati arts welcomed them back — and also continued new practices like taking the arts out into neighborhoods, meeting people where they are. We look back on our history with gratitude: Created to Grow means that we’ve been created to be resilient.

Five years from now, in 2027, ArtsWave will mark its centennial anniversary as the region’s engine for the arts. Our countdown to this milestone will include a series of strategic initiatives tied to our transformative sector-wide plan, the Blueprint for Collective Action. A system-wide approach to arts education, new digital discovery tools, more action toward equity and new experiments with radical intent to undergird the future…these are pillars of ArtsWave 100 that we look forward to sharing with you.

Inspired by innovation, ArtsWave remains Created to Grow. Thank you for growing with us.

Cincinnati’s past, present and future are inextricably linked by another one of the region’s defining characteristics: community support for the arts. This, too, was Created to Grow. In 1927, Anna Sinton and Charles Phelps Taft challenged Cincinnatians to show their appreciation for the arts by contributing $2.5 million, which they pledged to match with $1 million and the eventual bequest of their art collection for the public’s enjoyment. The $3.5 million that was amassed through that challenge, in a matter of months, established the organization that today carries on this tradition as ArtsWave.

Ninety-five years later, Cincinnati leads Ohio in creative economy metrics: jobs, payroll and ancillary economic value. Over these many decades, the annual ArtsWave Community Campaign has aggregated and invested 100 times the Tafts’ original challenge — more than $350 million — in the region’s cultural landscape. In 2020, Cincinnati was named a Top 20 "most arts vibrant" region in the country, in recognition of this rich history and present-day impact.

2022 marked a different kind of accomplishment: Live arts returned after months of pandemic-related closures in the arts. ArtsWave’s promotional campaign, “BRING YOU, LIVE ARTS ARE BACK,” invited the public to rediscover the myriad arts experiences all around them, rebounding after incredible challenges for artists and arts professionals. After all, Cincinnati arts continued to serve our community throughout COVID, albeit in different ways. What was missing was the traditional audience. In 2022, Cincinnati arts welcomed them back — and also continued new practices like taking the arts out into neighborhoods, meeting people where they are.

We look back on our history with gratitude: Created to Grow means that we’ve been created to be resilient.

Cincinnati’s cultural heritage can be traced back to the mid-1800s, when art and music were integral parts of daily life. Those lucky enough to travel abroad returned home to Ohio’s first big city, bringing back visions of creating “the Paris of America.” With that, they imagined great cultural institutions that would distinguish Cincinnati from other pioneering westward towns. They established the Art Academy of Cincinnati, May Festival, Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra and Cincinnati Art Museum — all among the first of their kind in the United States. After the turn of the century, another first of its kind was created — the Children’s Theatre of Cincinnati — followed by Cincinnati Opera, the nation’s second after New York’s Metropolitan Opera. You could say that the arts in Cincinnati were, from the beginning, Created to Grow.

Let’s think big, like the Taft family did almost 100 years ago. They challenged this community to contribute the funds that became the foundation for ArtsWave.

Those “rainy day funds” (financial reserves), combined with a generous community and boosts from Hamilton County and the City of Cincinnati, allowed our arts community to survive the “COVID storm” of the past two years.

Now — as we see hundreds of concerts, shows, exhibitions, school-based arts and festivals happening all around us — we know that the trajectory of the arts is strong.

It’s growing. New facilities are being built for our arts, whether it’s the new mainstage for Cincinnati Playhouse in the Park, a historic movie theater that will one day welcome neighborhood children in the West End or a ballet center that has no rival. No matter how you look at it, Cincinnati arts are growing.

As I step down from my leadership role on the ArtsWave Board, I thank you, Cincinnati, for what you’ve done to help our arts, not just to get there, but to grow our region. At the same time, I challenge you, Cincinnati, to capitalize on the opportunity we have to change the trajectory of funding to support the growth of our region’s arts sector. If we come together, I believe we can grow arts funding in a way that will be a game changer for the arts and a differentiator for the region.

2027: 100 Years Past and Future
ArtsWave will mark 100 years of supporting the region’s arts with a community celebration, marking the accomplishments of the past and setting sights on the years ahead.
Nearly 100 years of community support makes Cincy a Top 20 region for the arts today.

Cincinnati’s history of growing the arts is unique in the nation. It’s impossible to separate the quality and variety of arts that we enjoy here today from the nearly 100 years of community giving through the engine for the arts, now known as ArtsWave.

The Arts Put Cincinnati on the Map

The Arts Fuel Creativity and Learning
Funding from ArtsWave makes 162,094 arts education experiences possible in the 2021-2022 school year, helping to address the “COVID slide” experienced by many young people.

The Arts Deepen Roots in the Region
More than 5,000 individuals join ArtsWave networking and affinity groups, including ArtsWave Pride, the Circle of African American Leaders for the Arts, Women’s Leadership Roundtable and Young Professionals.

The Arts Bridge Cultural Divides
ArtsWave distributes over $1.1 million in support to Black and Brown artists and arts organizations over Fiscal Year 2022, made possible by ArtsWave donators and government relief funding.

The Arts Enliven Neighborhoods
Local arts organizations provide 302,034 community arts events at low or no cost in the past year.
As someone who has spent his career in the construction industry, my greatest joy is “building” an impact, just as we do every day with our construction projects. That’s how I approached the 2022 ArtsWave Campaign: by looking for ways to “rebuild” support.

I started by creating the Chairman’s REBUILD Challenge, asking donors across the community to make an additional gift to the Campaign. I couldn’t be more thankful of the results: our local leaders stepped up, contributing an additional $500,000 — twice our original goal!

To keep things “building,” we created Cincinnati’s first workplace battle of the bands: ArtsWave CincyJams, sponsored by Accenture. This event, hosted by Hard Rock Casino, surpassed its fundraising goal by more than 300%.

We were equally focused on celebrating the importance of the arts. We unveiled five new streetcar wrap designs, including an artist competition for three of them; three ArtsWave-branded Metro buses; and an ArtsWave sign facing I-75 at Messer’s headquarters.

My thanks goes to so many of you reading this. It starts with my Campaign Cabinet, many of whom work alongside of me at Messer Construction, including my Vice Chair, Sonya Walton. Then there is the community itself: I thank the hundreds of businesses and tens of thousands of individuals who came together to show their support for how essential our arts are to our region’s overall health and its future.

Live arts are back, and we celebrated that together throughout the Campaign at a string of in-person events, from panel discussions to happy hours to behind-the-scenes hardhat tours of the region’s next arts venues and riveting performances. With every single one of us giving what we can, we are rebuilding the power of the arts.

Thank you for your generous support of ArtsWave this year.
CREATES STRONGER OUTCOMES.

KICKING OFF WITH A WRAP

2022’s Campaign kickoff at Music Hall unveiled one of the new Connector streetcar wrap designs: “WE ARE ALL HUE-MAN,” by Brent Billingsley.

REUNITING NETWORKING GROUPS

The return to live, in-person events created opportunities to reunite ArtsWave’s networking and affinity groups, including panel discussions, festivals, mandala-making, a Streetcar Pub Crawl and more.

“The impact of the arts is threaded into our society, touching everything from building design to the quality of our neighborhoods, constructive community dialogue and so much more.”

CONNECTING THROUGH CINCYJAMS

CincyJams is the region’s first workplace Battle of the Bands event. Companies used it to grow engagement and strengthen connections for employees, which was essential after a long period of remote work.

“The arts are a part of our personal wellbeing — keeping us grounded mentally and emotionally.”

GROWING WORKPLACE GIVING

Through flexible online and virtual engagement experiences like ArtsWave Artist @ Your Meeting, longtime ArtsWave partner companies like P&G, Cincinnati Children’s Hospital Medical Center, MSA Design and Messer Construction held their most successful workplace giving campaigns ever. Workplace giving still accounts for two-thirds of the campaign total.

ArtsWave’s sector-wide Diversity, Equity, Inclusion and Access plan, “Lifting as We Learn,” calls for increased resources for Black and Brown arts; diversification of boards, staff, vendors and audiences across the arts sector; and increased support for local independent artists. We’re holding ourselves and arts partners accountable by taking stock annually of key performance indicators and metrics.

Committed to the journey:

Building the region’s largest funding mechanisms for Black arts, offering annual support and services for local, Black-led organizations and Black and Brown artists.

Showcasing and publicizing commissions of new work by Black and Brown artists each summer.

Coalescing culturally curious audiences by bringing leading national Black artists to Cincinnati through Flow, an African American Arts Experience.

Calling on the region’s 30 largest arts organizations to develop and track their own board-approved DEIA plans.

Providing ongoing professional development and DEIA training for arts sector personnel and board members.

Offering board training and matching through Boardway Bound.

Convening arts professionals of color to create supportive new networks.
ArtsWave’s Flow, An African American Arts Experience, is cultivating an adventurous and appreciative audience by inviting renowned Black artists to Cincy, adding to the diversity on our world-class stages and hosting related new social gatherings.

With support from area businesses, foundations and individuals, Flow presents quarterly performances by renowned Black artists and ensembles. Flow is part of ArtsWave’s efforts to build audiences for the arts that reflect the region we serve — a desired outcome of “Lifting as We Learn.”

In 2022, the series relaunched after pandemic-related shutdowns with a season featuring Broadway legend Norm Lewis and jazz vocalist Jazzmeia Horn. Flow also sponsored two performances of Cincinnati Opera’s world premiere, “Castor and Patience,” with a libretto by Pulitzer Prize winner Tracy K. Smith.

Our thanks to Flow’s sponsors

Flow, An African American Arts Experience, is made possible by the Greater Cincinnati Foundation and the David C. Herriman Fund at GCF; Cincinnati Arts Association, which also serves as the series’ production partner; GE; TriVersity Construction; d.e. Foxx & Associates; U.S. Bank; and several individual sponsors. Clever Crazes for Kids and Cincinnati Children’s Hospital Medical Center are Flow’s youth education sponsors. Media sponsors include The Cincinnati Enquirer, The Cincinnati Herald and Radio One.
ARTSWAVE DONORS HELPED POSITION THE REGION’S ARTS FOR RECOVERY.

Thanks to ArtsWave funding, local arts organizations and artists are moving away from crisis management and toward renewed community impact.

In 2022, ArtsWave’s $11.5 million Campaign reinvigorated our cultural landscape through these grant programs:

Young Professional Leaders are dedicated to cultivating the next generation of community leaders and supporters for the region’s arts. Membership is open to Young Professionals who contribute $500 or more to the ArtsWave Campaign.

A University of Pennsylvania study showed that those who engage with local arts and cultural events are 50% more likely to be involved in other community activities beyond the arts.

ARTSWAVE HQ REFRESH

- GBBN for leading the “ArtsWave 3.0” redesign process.
- TriVersity Construction for building a better ArtsWave.
- Messer, TriVersity and 3CDC for hosting our staff and volunteers throughout our renovation at their headquarters.
- Cedric Michael Cox for his beautiful original arts skyline that graces our new lobby gallery.
- Brandon Black, Drawnversations, for visually interpreting ArtsWave’s history.
- Intermedio for the beautiful light creation at our entrance.
- Ohio Valley Foundation and Anonymous for supporting our Refresh vision.
- RCF Group for furnishing us in style and Michelman for donating filing cabinets.
- Jos. Berning Printing Co. for envirobranding.
- ITA Audio Visual Solutions for equipping our space with updated technological solutions.
- Redmont Development Corp and the tenants of 20 E. Central Parkway for tolerating the disruption.
Victoria Morgan served as Cincinnati Ballet’s artistic director for 25 years before retiring in 2022. Her creative contributions to the company are immeasurable, and she was instrumental in securing support for the new Margaret and Michael Valentine Center for Dance in Walnut Hills.

Under her leadership, Cincinnati Ballet has put the Cincinnati region in the international spotlight for the depth and quality of its arts.

Internationally renowned artist, author and arts educator Annie Ruth has been exhibited in museums and galleries throughout the world. She is the founder of “Dada Rafiki,” a cultural gathering that honors remarkable women in the community.

She has shaped the region’s cultural landscape with her work, both as an artist and as a beloved and revered mentor for others in the region’s creative community.

Every year, ArtsWave awards the Rosa F. and Samuel B. Sachs Fund Prize for distinguished contributions to the region through the arts. This year’s recipients are long-standing pillars of the Cincy arts community.

The Sachs Fund Prize demonstrates how individuals have made the arts part of their enduring legacy in the Cincinnati region. The award originated in 1929, when the will of Samuel B. Sachs established it as a way to honor outstanding accomplishments in the arts.

ArtsWave itself was founded with an endowment from Charles P. and Anna Sinton Taft, “to further the musical and artistic education and culture of the people of Cincinnati.” Since then, legacy gifts to ArtsWave have built upon their endowment to fulfill their vision for years to come.

Planned giving is a critical part of keeping our region strong through the arts for future generations. Learn more about how to make the arts your legacy at artswave.org/legacy.
Rosemary’s generosity and volunteer work touched numerous organizations and people in our region. She credited her parents for instilling a strong sense of community in her and did the same for her children and grandchildren. She was particularly passionate about increasing access to the arts and supported several significant arts education initiatives through ArtsWave in addition to her annual support of the Campaign.

Durk was born in Haskerland, the Netherlands, the first CEO of P&G to be born outside of North America. His leadership of P&G coincided with his chairmanship of the 1999 Fine Arts Fund Campaign. That year, the campaign grew 11%, surpassing the $8 million mark for the first time. The additional funds raised through that Campaign helped establish a stable pool of funding for midsized arts organizations.

Marjorie had a tremendous impact on our community through her decades of volunteer leadership. She was recognized as a “Great Living Cincinnatian” by the Cincinnati USA Regional Chamber, and was named “Woman of the Year” by the Enquirer. She was one of ArtsWave’s strongest champions for legacy giving, and as a dedicated volunteer, encouraged others to join her in considering a legacy gift to benefit the arts. Her gift will have a far-reaching impact on the arts community she loved and supported throughout her lifetime.

Both a seasoned media professional and executive, Rich Walburg was a Board member of The Children’s Theatre of Cincinnati and the PR expert behind the growth of BLINK® illuminated by ArtsWave, Cincinnati’s largest arts event ever created. For the last several years of his career, Rich was a close partner to ArtsWave, helping to amplify and promote the value of the arts through ArtsWave’s longtime PR agency, Game Day Communications.
